1. Work on many cooperative buildings in the villages of Yugoslavia has ceased because of the lack of material and labor.
2. The village flour mills operated by the peasants are working day and night. The people in Porec in the Kicevo area claim that the peasants went to grind their wheat as soon as possible in order to dispose of it before it was seized by the Communists. Many of the peasants fear that there will be a famine this winter.
3. The wells and springs, particularly the ones located higher in the mountains, are completely dry. The condition of the water supply is unlike that which prevailed during September and October of previous years. This year's unusual drought has also affected the areas which generally have a large quantity of water.
